

your capture of the moves of the swoons of my lungs into words borne from pretty-pawed keys swirls me with a rush of red a painting framed, someday hoped, by your two soft arms